“ As a kid Angie was like mom number 2 to me . Always had dinner on the table for the family , and if I was there visiting John , which was pretty often in our teens , she always fed me as if I was her own. Baked beans were always present ! The memories I had with the Hamburgs are stronger now than ever. How lucky and blessed I was to have been around the entire family as a kid growing up ! Dale and Angie had a love for each other and a love of their kids that can never be forgotten by me or anyone else who knew them . R I P.

“My heart has been very heavy since reading and learning about the passing of my Grandma Angie on social media. My Grandma was so much more than my Grandma she helped shaped me into the woman I am today. To know her was to love her. She lived a long, meaningful life, full of strength and determination, and carried that spirit with her always.

She was the first person in her family to attend college, where she earned her teaching degree. While there, she played basketball—back when it was 6-on-6—and she always spoke about how much she loved the game. She went on to teach in a country school and later married my grandpa, the love of her life. Together they built a beautiful life centered in Christ. I will always cherish the way her face lit up when she told the story of how they met and how handsome she thought he was.

From a young age, she instilled in me the importance of faith and what it means to have Jesus in my life.

Her cooking and baking were second to none. From her ham balls and corn noodle casserole to her peanut clusters at Christmas, and the home made applesauce she made for me, she had a special way of bringing people together through food.

I spent many days cheering on the Iowa Hawkeyes with her—football and basketball games alike. She got so excited you'd think she was the coach, and now I find myself doing the very same thing.

I am so grateful for these memories and that my children will know their great-grandma as the incredible woman she was. I will always talk about her with them.

Grandma, you will forever be in my heart. Thank you for all of the great memories and everything you did for me.

Rest in Heaven Grandma, I love you.
